Product Description

The FSO 125p 1.5 ME is a mid-size passenger car that was manufactured at the passenger car factory in Warsaw. It is colloquially called Large Fiat. In January 1986, production of the updated version of 125p began under the designation 1.5 ME. It was a low-cost version with a package of modifications to achieve maximum fuel economy. The 1:35 scale model, made 100% from COBI bricks, closely reflects the characteristic shapes of the original FSO 125p version 1.5 ME. With 106 bricks, minor modifications and alterations to the vehicle are possible. With high quality prints to reproduce the markings on the car, this model will appeal to builders who like detail in their kits. The high quality of this kit means that the prints will not wear off after a while or when playing out of the hands of little ones. Rotating wheels equipped with tyres are ideal for moving the model around during play. The COBI Design building block model will not only be a toy in the children's room, but will also contribute to their interest in the history of cars. It will certainly help to develop children's motor skills and improve design skills. For adult building block fans, it will be a beautiful model of the historical car and perhaps the beginning of the future collection.
