Product Description

The 60-cm Karl-Gerät 040 was the heaviest self-propelled mortar used during the Second World War. It was equipped with a huge 60-cm gun. The Germans managed to produce only a few examples. Karl unit number 6, with its own name "Ziu", was used to shell Warsaw during the 1944 uprising. The model, made of clamp bricks, has many movable elements such as rotating wheels and working chains, a movable gun barrel and a loading system. The new release is an improved design with even more details. The set includes up to four figures and a dog. They are an officer, service soldier, mechanic and field policeman. The figures received a set of completely new legs with high officer boots. The field policeman is equipped with a new accessory representing the equipment of a German soldier. The whole set is completed by a building block with the printed name of the mortar "ZIU" built into the model. The set also includes a building plate with the name of the set.

The Karl device set will give you many hours of exciting building of this amazing structure. The realistic clamp building block model is the perfect model for an enthusiast of military history and technology. Due to its size and detail, Karl-Gerät is sure to add to many collections!
