Product Description

Information is everything: each side wants it, each side wants to prevent the other from having it. Therefore, you communicate in codes and encrypt your messages so that only your side understands them.

In Decrypto: Anniversary Edition, two teams of two to four players compete to find out who are the best cipher artists. You always take turns trying to transmit codes to your own team members. Your own team must understand them without the opposing team being able to decipher them. But the other side is listening and will try to intercept the messages. Which side will succeed in cracking the code words first? Find out in this innovative communication game.

This fifth anniversary edition features a classy new box design and 110 new word cards.

Caution. Not suitable for children under 3 years as small parts may be swallowed. Danger of suffocation!
