Product Description

The Horch 901 is a military off-road vehicle that was used by the German Wehrmacht from 1937 to 1945. Produced in numbers of several thousand, it became a common means of transport in the army. Originally, the car was intended for the transport of staff officers. In the course of time it was used as an ambulance for transporting the wounded, as a communications vehicle, as a light artillery tractor, as a supply transporter and for soldiers.

From the set of 178 COBI building blocks you build a Horch 901 (Kfz.15) military off-road vehicle in the livery of the Afrika Korps. The car was released in a 1:35 scale model. All graphic details are high quality prints that do not wear out even with intensive use. The advantage is the design, which uniquely reproduces the original forms of its historical prototype. The model continues the series of vintage cars created using specially designed elements. The set includes great multi-piece wings, a block that imitates a radiator, a sand glass and many other useful elements. The car is easy to build and suitable for modifications. More experienced builders will easily use the available elements to create other versions of cars or trucks! The set includes a figure of a soldier of the Afrika Korps, equipped with a cap with imprint and a MP 40 submachine gun. The set also includes a building block with the name of the vehicle printed on it.

Horch 901 in the DAK version is a great gift idea, regardless of the age of the recipient. It will delight adult collectors, automotive enthusiasts and younger history buffs. It is also a great start to the adventure with the Polish COBI building blocks.
