Product Description

The Carrera DIGITAL 132 Ford GT Race Car "No. 67" is the model version of the Ford GT racing car. With the Ford GT, the racing car manufacturer from Detroit says goodbye to northern France's legendary endurance race for the time being. The number 67 is a reference to the famous winning car of Gurney and Foyt in the Ford MK IV from 1967, and the eye-catching red and white livery guarantees the car the complete attention of the spectators. The elegant sports car was sold by the manufacturer Chip Ganassi Racing in strictly limited numbers and conquers the endurance track with 656 hp.

The Ford GT in 1:32 scale also attracts attention on the home slot racing track when it whizzes around the bends. Thanks to the official Ford licence, the slot car could be recreated in every detail of the original. The model even has working front, rear and brake lights. Furthermore, the red and white racing car can be individually coded, digitally controlled and offers real driving fun for everyone.
