With the two tall tarot card trays removed you can see the remaining player boards standing vertically against the side of the box.

There are seven player trays, with separate slots for the miniatures and the player tokens. The eighth tray is for the combat cards and structure bonus tiles in one slot and the other tokens in the other slot. The combat cards can all be sleeved.

The coin slots are split to have separate slots for each size of coin. The two resource trays separate each of the four resource types.

The remaining top layer trays are for the medium sized cards, the encounter and multiplier tokens. There is space for all cards to be sleeved.

The two tarot sized card trays have space to separate the encounter and factory cards. Again there is room for all the cards to be sleeved with quality sleeves.
