Product Description

Schildkrötenrennen - board game (DE), for 2-5 players, ages 5+

Everything is ready to start on the colorful flower meadow: five turtles in different colors have met arrived to identify the best sprinter of its kind. One of the turtles is drawn face down to each player. Only he knows who to advance - but if possible not too obviously, because otherwise the competitors will try everything to screw up his victory. The game is kept going by plus and minus cards, which indicate the distance and direction of the turtle's move. Sometimes the players have a free choice. Then it is worth paying particular attention to whether you can track down your opponent and unmask your favorite turtle. Additional gag: If a turtle comes into an occupied field, it simply sits on the other and can be piggybacked on the next train. It takes around 20 minutes for the first turtle to finally reach the target field at the other end of the flower meadow. Their master is then also the winner of the game. If there are fewer than five children in the party, all five turtles still race. Then it can happen that a neutral turtle comes first to the end of the flower meadow and the player whose turtle came closest to the goal wins. Turtle Race is an easy-to-understand running game for children from 5 years of age that skilfully incorporates tactical elements and bluff options. This means that the race is not only great fun for the children, but also for the whole family. In 2005, when it was first published on the nomination list for children's game of the year, it is now preparing to conquer the next generation.
