Product Description

Steampunk Clockwork: Nautical Apparatus Modern Dice Set

A revolution! Behold the unique invention that will revolutionize all of the submerged and regular gaming sessions! Notice its turquoise material color, blending in while underwater, and the copper painting proving it to be a genius' work! But that's not all - special attention is due for the Modern D4, a remodeled polyhedron in a very pragmatic shape. A true marvel of modern creativity!

If you come across copper elements of complex steam-powered machinery in any of your games, you'll think "Steampunk". If you encounter them in a submarine that is ahead of its time, you will think "Nautilus". If you combine both of these thoughts - it's home sweet home because that's what the Steampunk Clockwork: Nautical Apparatus Modern Dice Set is inspired by. Every inventor living in that world would be damn proud of himself if he could create the machine that not only does not sink but even floats and swims underwater! Of course, for the sake of undetectability to the naked eye, it will be painted turquoise. Of course, it has to look good and work even better as well, so copper ornaments are essential. On top of that, there's a Modern D4 included, with rounded edges and much more detailed engravings. An interesting combination, if not contradicting itself - but regardless of the intentions, it certainly catches the eye like nothing else.

Steampunk is more than gears, levers, pistons, sophisticated designs, and the splendor of elegant garbs of ladies and gentlemen. Steampunk is Jules Verne's dream come true, a fusion of the sophisticated style of the Victorian era and the vision of the technology's development towards steam engines. A retro-futuristic period that never existed, albeit it should have. These stories are about heroes in technological marvels of brass and bronze, steam-powered machines, and unlimited scientific thought.

That is what Steampunk Clockwork dice are all about. Now in a completely new color theme, with engravings perfectly suited to accompany you on your adventures in a world where you are more than just a grain of sand in the cogwheels of the Destiny Machine.

If you are a mad scientist, you won't find better dice. If you just like playing as one, you won't find better dice. If you like the Steampunk theme, you won't find better dice. If you like the colors of the ocean and metallic copper... you know what goes next. Thanks to these polyhedrons, you will feel the real call of adventure and ignite a spark of inventive genius, a flair for DIY mastery, and creating incredible machines ... But most of all, you will look at them with real pleasure, and each success you roll will be incomparably more satisfying.
