Product Description

"Hamlet: The Village Building Game" is a competitive building game for connoisseurs. In English, "hamlet" stands for a small village without a church. A game of Hamlet is therefore over when you have completed the church - your modest settlement has become a lively village.

Construct buildings and paths that everyone can use freely, process resources or sell them profitably on the market and fulfil orders to complete the most important construction project of your village - the church. Use workers skilfully: Villagers perform the many tasks that drive the development of the small settlement, while donkeys form transport chains to get resources from one place to another quickly.

Use place tiles in many different shapes, which you combine anew in each game to create a village that looks completely different each time. You build your village together, but in the end the game is won by whoever has made the greatest contribution to building the village and thus received the most victory points.

- Number: 1-4 players
