Product Description

Modern American Pershing tanks that came onto the production line in the last months of the Second World War were characterised by high efficiency. Mostly they ended up in General Patton's army, where they did great work. Production of the tanks began in 1944 and lasted until the following year. About 2,200 examples were produced. The tank was equipped with armour up to 102 mm thick and an effective 90 mm M3 gun. The end of the Second World War did not mean the end of this model's service. Tanks went into battle again during the Korean War of 1950-1953. The set has been carefully designed in 1:28 scale with 904 COBI building blocks. The model of the tank has movable elements such as: a working chain traction, rotating wheels, a lowerable gun barrel, a rotating turret, hatches that can be opened and a maintenance hatch for the engine. The set includes a new tanker figure. The blocks and the figure are covered with high quality prints that will not wear out with intensive use. The whole set is completed by a plate with the name of the model. Thanks to simple and intuitive instructions, the set offers an exciting construction. A realistic block model is sure to attract the attention of not only adult but also younger fans of blocks, history and military technology. It is the perfect addition to the COBI Historical Collection dedicated to World War II. Warning: not suitable for children under 36 months!
