Product Description

Katyusha from the family of rocket launchers manufactured in the Soviet Union, mid-1941. Despite accurate detection, firing on the enemy position with the Katyusha was very effective and, thanks to its effect, could be used on a particular surface and mass. The sound of the firing rockets caused panic in the enemy ranks. It was not for nothing that the Germans called these weapons "Stalin's organ". The BM-13 model is a rail-mounted rocket launcher mounted on the chassis of CIS cars. M-13 rockets, which stood in two rows, the range was more than 9 kilometres. The set with the famous BM-13 Katyusha rocket launcher in 1:35 scale for COBI figures consists of 440 elements. The use of new elements from the COBI catalogue enables the faithful creation of characteristic vehicle shapes. The model's features include: rotating wheels with tyres, adjustable launcher angle, hinged vehicle cabin and removable missiles!

All graphic elements are made of high quality prints. The figures represent Soviet soldiers of the launcher crew. Each officer and private also has detailed prints on the back. Our 1:35 scale collection that you can never do without! The Katyusha is one of the most distinctive weapons used during the Second World War. Experienced builders used the structure's chassis to build other variants of historic vehicles in 1:35 scale. Build stories, brick by brick!
