Product Description

The Lockheed® P-38 LIGHTNING® is a fast and heavily armed American long-range fighter from World War II. This unusual twin-engined aircraft had a nacelle with a pilot's cabin located between two fuselages. Called "The Flying Frame", it performed very well, resulting in a long production run from 1941 to 1945 and an excellent number of kills by American pilots. The aircraft was not decommissioned until 1965.

P-38 LIGHTNING was released under the original licence of the American defence company Lockheed Martin. The aircraft, faithfully reproduced on a scale of 1:32, consists of 545 COBI building blocks. The model features high-quality prints that will not wear out even with intensive use. It is worth looking out for the characteristic markings and emblems that relate to the historic aircraft with the number 208 and the Pluto dog symbol. The aircraft has rotating propellers, folding landing gear, movable ailerons and a hinged cabin in which you can place a well-detailed pilot figure. The whole set is completed with a building block with the set name and Lockheed Martin logo printed on it! This famous plane is the perfect gift idea for fans of aviation, history and technology. It's sure to satisfy picky collectors and youngsters fascinated by building blocks too. Build history block by block with COBI!
