Product Description

In the mid-1950s, Chevy® introduced its new overhead-valve V-8 engine, commonly referred to as the "small-block" Chevy®. These cars, equipped in the '55 - '57 years, have become known as "Tri-Chevys". The 1957 is the most popular of them all. The Bel Air® version was the top of the line model with added features and trim that set it apart. The rear tails were a styling trend that celebrated the jet age.
