Product Description

The German offshoot of US Corvette tuner Callaway develops and builds its vehicles in Leingarten near Heilbronn. Callaway Competition is the only team to have taken part in all the races since the inception of the GT Masters and has already won the drivers' and team championships twice. With the Chevrolet Corvette C7 GT3-R, the team led by German driver Marvin Kirchhöfer and Swiss driver Jeffrey Schmidt finished 10th in 2021.

In 1:32 scale, the Chevrolet Corvette C7 GT3-R "Callaway Competition, No.77" also invites you to exciting races around the fast corners of the Carrera racetrack at home. The car, which can be individually coded and thus directly adapted to the driver's abilities, is in no way inferior to the great original in terms of racing power. Front and rear lights make the driving experience perfect. The Carrera car can also be converted to digital using a separate digital code and offers unmistakable driving fun for young and old alike. Thanks to Advanced and Beginner modes, the car can be adapted to personal driving skills.
