Product Description

Who builds the fastest?

The players help the ants to build an ant hill. At the beginning, the dice roll and then it must be decided which number of dice to set so that the correct building blocks can be collected for the building plan of the ant hill. Memory is now required until the building site is reached, because the load must not be looked through until the final unloading. And, of course, you only build from the bottom up. The first player to build the ant hill with the coloured building blocks wins.

The special feature: Children and adults can play with building plans of different weights!

How to play BauBoom:

- The coloured building blocks are distributed on the squares of the game board
- The remaining building blocks go into the container with their backs facing up
- Each player places his ant hill in front of him and puts his wheelbarrow on the starting square
- The player whose turn it is rolls the dice, moves his wheelbarrow forward and collects the building blocks he needs for his anthill
- Each brick is placed face down in the wheelbarrow
- When the player has reached the starting field again, the wheelbarrow is emptied and the ant hill is built. Build from the bottom to the top
- If a brick that you have brought with you cannot be built, it must be placed in the container together with a previously placed brick from the ant hill
- The first player to finish building the ant hill wins
- In addition to the main game, there are other variants for younger and older players
