Product Description

The floor model is a replica of the F-104G aircraft, or "Recce". The Lockheed F-104 Starfighter is one of the most famous fighters in aviation history and also one with the longest service life: its history began in the late 1950s and ended for some air forces in the mid-2000s. Its unique airframe with a slim fuselage and very little wing surface area made this aircraft ideal as an interceptor. Thanks to the thrust of its General Electric J79-GE-11A afterburning turbojet engine, it could exceed Mach 2.2 with an excellent rate of climb. But it was not very manoeuvrable and difficult to control. The F-104G Starfighter was produced under licence by several European airlines. From the mid-1960s it became the standard interceptor for many NATO countries, including Italy, Germany, Holland, Greece and Turkey. Armament was basically the same as in earlier versions, with a 20 mm Vulcan cannon and the option to fit air-to-air missiles, bombs or extra fuel tanks under the wings to increase the aircraft's range. to traditional interceptor service. The F-104G was therefore equipped with a special external reconnaissance pod "Orpheus", which provided excellent operational results.
