Product Description

Take the reins of your civilisation and make decisions that will lead to the greatest possible prosperity. Research new technologies to improve your country's science, military strength, zeal, culture and industrialisation. Develop the greatest philosophical current of mankind. Use your followers to become one of its pioneers and thus determine its development. Send out your architects and explorers to create wonders in your territory that will outlive us all. Grow your population to produce the most famous personalities and change the world forever, even after their death. Develop your military heritage so that the name of your civilisation is enough to make your enemies tremble - and if that is not enough, send out your army to defeat even the most distant barbarians. Use your philosophers and thinkers to solve the great challenges of humanity that will shape its history.

In Path of Civilization, you have to make decisions from the first second of the game that will have an impact until the end. The game is played simultaneously and works with a simple card and resource management system. The variety of maps guarantees enormous variability.
