Product Description

The Scania R143H 6x2 was a powerful and reliable truck for transporting heavy loads over long distances. This model had a V8 engine that was characterised by low fuel consumption and high efficiency. The cab, with its rounded corners and curved windscreen, was made after long studies in the wind tunnel according to the strictest safety standards of the time. Its economy and great reliability immediately made the truck a reference point for road transport, resulting in good sales results worldwide.
