Product Description

The floor model is a recreation of the Ducati 888 from the '93 season. On 26 September 1993, a young and inspirational motorbike racer named Tetsuya Harada put the finishing touches to his machine at the Jarama circuit just before the final round of the season. This would make him the first Japanese world champion since 1977. His closest rival, Loris Capirossi, was ahead in the points standings in this final race, but bad luck plagued him during the dynamic battle for the 250cc GP2 title. Although this was Harada's debut season for the World Grand Prix, he had worked closely with Yamaha over the previous two seasons, perfecting the factory TZM bike, which enabled him to win the All Japan Championship title in 1992.
