Product Description

The floor model is a replica of the Calsonic Skyline Nissan GT-R 34, which is a significant improvement on the unrivalled Nissan Skyline GT-R of the 1970s Japanese touring car races. Compared to the R33 released in 1995, the R34 was more compactly built and had a narrower wheelbase, so it was adapted to the new chassis model. With the exception of the roof, the body was made entirely of carbon fibre and featured a large curved wing on the rear - just one example of its aerodynamic and stylish shape. The latest version of the Skyline GT-R, the R34, promises to add more GT championship titles to Nissan's illustrious racing history.
