Product Description

Based on the existing Pz.Kpfw. II. Light Tank, this self-propelled artillery vehicle was developed for the German Wehrmacht in 1942 and experienced its baptism of fire during the Battle of Kursk. With a longer hull length, it could accommodate the 10.5-cm howitzer FH18. Thanks to its good mobility and partially protected weapons compartment, it could be deployed close to the front. This ensured artillery support for infantry units during combat. With a production of more than 650 units between 1943 and 1945, this self-propelled artillery vehicle became the standard howitzer for the Panzer and Panzergrenadier divisions.

Caution!Not suitable for children under 36 months due to small parts which may be swallowed, choking hazard.
