Product Description

The floor model is a replica of the US M1A2 SEP Abrams Tusk II first used in 2003 during the invasion of Iraq. The tanks were equipped with more protection due to RPG threats as well as improvised warheads, the so-called TUSK (Tank Urban Survival Kit). The upgrade included reactive armour on the hull sides, as well as hull underside armour to protect against landmines. Following this, the TUSK II was introduced, which then had features such as tile-shaped reactive armour to the turret and hull sides, as well as an armoured shield for the commander and a rear view camera.
