Product Description

In 1929, the Krupp company began to develop a light, three-axle truck that was urgently needed by the Reichswehr. There were various requirements that had to be met by Krupp. The main goal was to standardise the vehicles and to make them suitable for off-road use. For the Reichswehr, the vehicle was an enrichment for the vehicle fleet and very popular with the troops. There were also some technical changes, such as the 4-cylinder boxer engine, which was also used in Panzerkampfwagen 1; the logistical advantages here are obvious. Caution! Not suitable for children under 3 years. Choking hazard due to small parts.
