Product Description

The MAN F8 was a great commercial success for the well-known German truck manufacturer. It was characterised by the successful combination of the reliable transmission "made in Germany" with the cabin designed and manufactured by the Saviem company in France. Equipped with a 6-cylinder in-line engine installed at the front as a longitudinal engine, it was produced from the end of the 1960s to the mid-1980s and can be considered a true icon of heavy transport in those years. Its widespread use led to the production of numerous chassis configurations and many special equipment variants. The two-axle 19.321 road tractor can be considered one of the most versatile models and was used in various logistics and goods handling activities. Caution! Not suitable for children under 36 months. Choking hazard due to small parts.
