Product Description

The Citroën 2CV was continuously produced and constantly improved between 1949-1990, becoming an icon of the French car industry. The car was designed before the war. Its creation is linked to the need to produce a simple and cheap car for the masses, according to the motto of the company's boss Pierre Boulanger "quatre roues sous un parapluie" (four wheels under an umbrella). The car was extremely simplified, economical and allowed the comfortable transport of 4 people with luggage.

Dubbed the ugliest car in the world at the Paris Salon in 1948, it became an object of desire, contrary to the opinion of critics. In 41 years of production, almost 4 million examples were made in factories worldwide. Today, this car has cult status and is a collector's delight. With 80 COBI building blocks, you build a model of the cult Citroën 2CV Type A that is perfectly reproduced on a scale of 1:35. Thanks to the use of elements specially developed for this car, the shape of the body is as close as possible to the original. Also noteworthy are the completely new headlights, which will certainly be used in many models of the COBI Historical Collection! The car is equipped with 4 movable wheels and imprints of the most important details. The Citroën is 11 cm long and 4.5 cm high. The kit includes a plate with the model's signature and the CITROËN logo! The Cobi Youngtimer Collection and the Historical Collection feature classic cars of great car brands. All cars are designed in 1:35 scale and form a cohesive collection that is ideal for children, teenagers and adults who are passionate about history and the automotive industry.
