Product Description

Let the frogs jump! The numerical values of your own row of cards should be arranged in ascending order with the help of the frogs. Not so easy when there are also useless things swimming around in the pond that don't fit into the row of numbers! By skilfully swapping the cards, the frogs jump through the row of cards in great leaps. A children's game by successful author Haim Shafir with a great fun factor. How to play Fröschi's MBE3. Everyone starts with 8 face-down cards in front of them and tries to place these cards in an ascending row from 1 to 8 by turning them over and rearranging them. The player whose turn it is draws a card. If it is a number card, it is placed in the corresponding position in the ascending row of numbers in your own card display. The card lying there, which has been replaced by a number card, is again sorted into the correct place in the row of numbers. If there is already a face-up card in the correct position, the turn ends. If it is a rubbish card, the turn ends. Frogs can have any numerical value and can therefore be placed in any position in the row of cards. The first player to sort or reveal all 8 cards wins the round and plays with one card less in the next round. In the following round, the highest card value in the row of cards is omitted. This continues until one player only has one card left and wins the round. Details- Language: German- Age: 5+Content- 60 playing cards- 1 set of instructions
