Product Description

So you no longer have to live out of bags. 2 plastic token holders keep the game material neatly organised. The country is in a spirit of optimism. His Highness, the Eternal King, has decreed that the borders of the realm are to be expanded. When building a village, order, concentration and good organisation are essential - after all, you don't want to settle on the edge of a disaster area. To prevent your game box from becoming your personal disaster zone, we support you with the Feldherr token holder set for Charterstone. This will keep your tokens and game material well organised and clearly arranged. The token holder set fits into the original Charterstone board game box. The trays offer space for all the small game material. The two token holders are stored in the scriptorium box and can be closed with a lid. Fill the starting tokens directly into the token holders. Gradually fill the remaining compartments with the unlocked content/tokens. Playing cards are stored in the index box without a protective cover. The original cardboard inserts and cardboard boxes are required to ensure that all contents are held firmly in place. Chronicle guide, Automa guide, index guide, game board, target and expansion board are placed on the cardboard boxes. Transport and tip-proof - vertical storage possible. We have a practical alternative for you so that you can keep your tokens neatly organised in one place and don't have to rummage for your unlocked content from various bags. The token holder set ensures that you can keep all your game materials neatly organised and tidy. You can sort the starting tokens directly and gradually fill the compartments. The further you get in the game, the fuller the token holders become, but you can still easily access the game material. At the start of the game, you simply distribute the filled token boxes on the game table. You can now save yourself the time-consuming task of organising and arranging them.
