Product Description

A co-operative deduction game where the aim is for the other player to guess a secret character by playing other character cards from your hand as clues and indicating whether they are similar to or different from the secret character. Similo: Lord of the Rings is a co-operative deduction game in which all players work together to identify a secret card using a series of clues! The fans try to guess a secret character from Middle-earth from the twelve cards on the table. They are supported by the clue-giver, who plays cards from his hand as clues to suggest which cards they should remove. For example, if the secret card is Frodo Baggins™, you could play Éowyn™ to suggest to the guessers that the character to be removed is a man, a woman or a Rohirrim™. Or you could play Saruman™ to suggest that the characters to be removed are a wizard, rogue or white-haired... it's up to the guessers to understand what the clue-giver is implying! This new Lord of the Rings edition of the critically acclaimed deduction game contains 39 large cards, beautifully illustrated by Naiade, featuring the portrait and name of a number of Middle-earth characters. Did you know that this game is fully combinable with other games from the Similo range! You can also mix and match different editions, using one deck for the characters and the other for the clues... will you guess which character has something in common with Hermione Granger, Albus Dumbledore and Ron Weasley from Similo: Harry Potter?
