Product Description

The first game for adults, devised by teenagers, made by children. Perfect for anyone who is still mentally stuck in primary school! The Coco Parrot party game consists of 600 question and answer cards full of black humour and political incorrectness. The Question Master reads out a question card with gaps. The players fill in these gaps with their answer cards. The Question Master chooses the most humorous, weirdest or most appropriate answer at his discretion. The chosen player receives one point and is the new Question Master. The first player to score five points wins the game. You can use the white cards without text to create your own cards and customise your game.
