Product Description

Many board game players are familiar with this. Freshly bought and unplayed, the lid on the board game box sits firmly in place. But over time, after a few openings and closings, the lid becomes looser and looser and, in the worst case, tears. And one day you want to get your beloved game off the shelf, but then you only have the lid in your hand and the entire contents of the game at your feet. Of course, we also have a solution to this problem: the Feldherr Flex Cross Band. Ensures that the board game box and lid are firmly attached during storage and transport. Ideal for stabilising older, loose-fitting board game boxes and game boxes with protruding lids. The wide, elasticated rubber band does not cut into the box and does not leave any scratches. Thanks to the cross shape and the artificial leather reinforcement on the top, it can also be used as a carrying handle. Holds together not only board game boxes, but also stacks of books, document collections and similar packages. Available individually or in an inexpensive pack of three.
