Product Description

Safely store and transport a Balrog and 20 warrior miniaturesThe lowly Maiar were once equipped with flaming manes and flaming blades by Melkor and sent into battle. After the defeat of the Valar and the free peoples of Middle-earth, they were banished to the Void. But one hid in the depths of the mines of Moria, where he was finally awakened by the dwarves and has been spreading terror and devastation in Middle-earth ever since.To ensure that your Balrog arrives on the battlefield in full splendour, you will receive the matching Feldherr foam inlay to protect your miniature.The full-size foam inlay is divided into 1 large and 20 small compartments.The Balrog is housed in the large compartment. Thanks to the miniature-precise cut, the demon of terror stays in place during transport. Securely wrapped in soft foam all round, the delicate parts of the figure, such as the wings, claws and flaming whip, are optimally protected against storage and transport damage. This also prevents the paint from scratching or rubbing off the painted miniature.The tray is suitable for both build variants, the Balrog with Flaming Sword or the Balrog with Flaming Whip.In addition to Morgoth's creature, you also have space for 20 standard warrior miniatures on 25 mm bases, such as Moria Goblins.
