Product Description

It may be cumbersome and clumsy, but its resilience and destructive potential are all the greater. Mortarion himself created this plague- and slime-spitting monster of a tank to demonstrate the Death Guard's superiority over the Empire. But even a siege tank like the Plagueburst Crawler, equipped with ramming blades and massive plates, has vulnerable spots beyond the battlefield. That's why we have this matching Feldherr foam insert to protect your miniature. This foam insert has a large compartment, customised for a model of the crawler. The precise cut ensures that the figure does not slide around during transport. Sensitive parts, such as the plague spitters on the sides, remain just as intact here as the spikes on the roof and front. Embedded in high-quality, soft foam, the colours of the painted miniature are of course also safe from abrasion, scratches and chipping. Four additional compartments offer you space for further units of your Death Guard, such as Plague Marines, Plaguebearers and other models on up to 32 mm bases.
