Product Description

The Northrop F-5A Freedom Fighter is a light combat aircraft developed by the American company Northrop Corporation in the 1960s. It was put into service in 1964. The F-5A was a popular export model and gained worldwide recognition. Its main features are manoeuvrability, ease of operation and a relatively low operating price. This aircraft played an important role in many armed conflicts and served as a platform for pilot training. Between 1966 and 1972, Norway purchased a total of 108 F-5 aircraft in various versions. These aircraft were in service with the Air Force for almost 35 years and underwent numerous modernisation programmes over the years. Squadron 336 at Rygge Air Base was the last unit to use the F-5, and the aircraft were withdrawn from active service in 2000. With 358 COBI bricks you can build an F-5 Freedom Fighter in the beautiful colours of the Air Force (Royal Norwegian Air Force). The licenced set has been built according to the plans of the F-5 aircraft with the greatest attention to detail using building blocks. The aircraft features characteristic decals, movable ailerons and removable landing gear. The cabin can be opened and a simplified figure of a pilot with helmet can be placed inside. The set includes a display stand made of clamping bricks and a sign with the name, scale of the aircraft and the Norwegian flag. The 1:48 scale model complements the aircraft series released as part of the Armed Forces collection! Build it!
