Product Description

The HMMWV, an acronym that stands for High Mobility Multipurpose Wheeled Vehicle and is better known as the "Humvee", was developed for the US Army and represents the technological advancement of US "know-how" in the construction of extremely flexible off-road vehicles, for which the "Willys" is still a symbol today. The "Humvee" was put into production in the 1980s and is characterised by its size and flexibility in use, as it has four-wheel drive and a robust construction that can withstand the harsh environmental and operating conditions. Several versions were produced, which were used for troop transport, military logistics, advanced reconnaissance and target acquisition. The M966 Tow Carrier version was equipped with a roof-mounted tow missile system to increase the Humvee's offensive potential against armoured and armed vehicles.Kit, instructions, decals
