Product Description

A mysterious incident has shaken the sleepy little town of Dennsberg. During a climbing tour on the Talbachhorn, Thomas Borgmann, managing director of the traditional soup manufacturer BORGMANN's, fell from a height of several metres and has been in hospital with life-threatening injuries ever since. While the local police authorities are still assuming it was a tragic accident, there are more and more signs that point in a completely different direction ... Now it's up to your criminal investigation skills! As a team of experienced investigators, you know exactly what to do: analyse the available documents, interrogation transcripts and witness statements, examine the evidence collected by the police, check the motives and alibis of the suspects.
