Product Description

Who counts the steps when climbing stairs or has to straighten crooked pictures? Does anyone cook special dishes to share on social media? Or can one be disgusted by buttons? Almost everyone has special quirks that are often kept to themselves. In the new party game "Wunderbar Sonderbar" you can finally admit your unusual tics and even get rewarded! The centre of this compulsively good game by Jörg Domberger is formed by 165 cards with rather unusual quirks. The active players - three to eight from the age of 14 - take turns trying to correctly assess the others. Who really has this quirk? Or is someone perhaps just bluffing? With the revelation of the quirky idiosyncrasies and crazy foibles, you definitely get to know your friends from a whole new side.

The easy-to-understand rules come without quirks: the most correctly assessed tics of the others also score the most points. The compulsively good party game lasts about 30 minutes. Without a doubt, normality is just boring in "Wunderbar Sonderbar" - the more unusual the quirks are, on the other hand, the more fun is guaranteed in the game round! Attention: not suitable for children under 36 months!

- Age: from 14 years
- Number: for 3-8 players
