Product Description

After the 1889 Universal Exhibition, most Parisians wanted the Eiffel Tower to be removed because they thought it was ugly. But suddenly they changed their minds and the Eiffel Tower remained where it is today. What led to the collective change of mind? A Crazy World is a creative and highly entertaining game with challenging and intriguing questions based on true stories from around the world! Use your imagination, creative thinking and common sense to solve the puzzle to find the right answer! More than 50 incredible stories for an exciting and entertaining evening with family or friends. Just the thing for anyone who loves creative thinking - mixed with plenty of humour! Be prepared for curious facts and surprising answers, from yourself and your friends! A crazy world is also a great way to pass the time in small groups or try to solve the puzzle on your own. Important information: Caution! Not suitable for children under 36 months.
