Product Description

ChronoCops - Jule Verne's Parallel World Paradox, Card Game (EN Edition)

ChronoCops: Jules Verne's Parallel World Paradox is a special challenge for the players, because the crazy Professor Knix has hidden himself in an inaccessible timeline. To stop him anyway, the players must find Atlantis, where all timelines converge. Jules Verne can help them, but the way to him is blocked because Professor Knix has conquered the most important of all timelines, Gemini.

ChronoCops is a time-travel adventure full of crazy humour and lots of winks. The game idea is based on point-and-click adventures from video game history. As ChronoCops - agents of the most prestigious research department for time travel - the players travel through time to famous people and places where they have to solve puzzles. To do this, they have to put the right things together, think around corners, clear obstacles out of the way and thus stop the mad Professor Knix together.

The players explore different timelines, which can only be gradually opened by successfully solving puzzles. In each timeline there are different jump points to which they can travel. Some in the past or future, others in alternative realities. There are clues and objects hidden everywhere that the ChronoCops can collect and combine with the Chrono Decoder to use in a specific location. The group can also get tips from the back of the Chrono Decoder if they get stuck.

Not suitable for children under 36 months.
