Product Description

DESCRIPTIONThe curse generator is a fascinating word machine made of solid cardboard that combines 3,375 classic and 3,375 modern curses. While the words on the classic side come from two heroes of German poetry (the poetic shoemaker Hans Sachs from Nuremberg and the privy councillor and prince of poets Johann Wolfgang Goethe from Frankfurt), the modern side is taken entirely from the voice of the people today. Picked up on the street, in chats or comment columns, the curse generator offers imaginative swearing at a high level. The ever-changing combination possibilities make the curse generator a witty and stimulating tool for meaningful communication. If you don't like swearing, enjoy the creative word creations from the past and present. Developed by Rolf-Bernhard Essig for the exhibition "Potz! Lightning! From the Pharaoh's Curse to Hate Speech" in Frankfurt, Berlin and Nuremberg.
