Product Description

Twenty years have passed since the creation of Frankenstein's monster. The year is now 1819 and a shadow has settled over Paris. An unknown benefactor with a rather unhealthy skin colour and many, almost creepy, scars opened a competition. The aim? To accomplish what Frankenstein had already done. The prize? To unravel the mystery of mortality. This would mean the world to your benefactor, after all, he is no longer alone ... Abomination - Frankenstein's Legacy is a competitive worker placement game for 2-4 players aged 14 and up by Dan Blanchett with illustrations by Palamarchuk Mikhail and Tony Sart. You are scientists trying to repeat Frankenstein's experiment and create life yourself. To do this, you have to get corpse parts from humans and animals and patch them up. If everything goes well, you will have at least partially created a human being. If not, you'll have to start all over again. After all, not every experiment goes well from the start. - for 2-4 players- ages 14 and up- 90-120 min playing time
