Product Description

In the entertaining memo game "Lenny's Limo", the children drive through the city in their limousines and collect new passengers of a special kind such as yetis, paddlers or a beach family. But watch out: Only matching couples are allowed on board! All children start with one front and one rear part of their limousine. The winner is the one who can place the most passenger tiles between them during the course of the game. As in many memo games, two hidden tiles are always revealed per turn. But in "Lenny's Limo", the aim is not to find the exact counterparts, but to find matching pairs that produce a common, funny motif. This could be the two Yetis, the paddlers or the beach family.

However, the funny illustrations of the passengers, which contribute significantly to the irresistible charm of this memo game, do not always make it easy for the children: Only those who look carefully and also pay attention to the moves of the others will find the right combinations of the 24 tiles. If there is any uncertainty as to whether two of the large-format tiles really fit together, this can be quickly checked by looking at the position of the windows.

The original memo game by Mary Jo Reutter is ideal for children from the age of five. Two to four limousines set off in search of passengers until the destination is reached after around twenty minutes.

Attention: not suitable for children under 36 months!
