Product Description

Description Gift set Flying B-25J Mitchell Named after the "Father of the Air Force", Billy Mitchell, the B-25J "Mitchell" is part of Air Force history. Scale 1:48. 147 parts. 343 mm long. Suitable for ages 12 and up. William Lendrum "Billy" Mitchell was initially a Major General in the US Army, but after his retirement in 1926, he was instrumental in the expansion of the American Air Force until 1936. The twin-engine, medium-weight B-25J bomber was named after him. The B-25 bombers were deployed in the Second World War from 1940 and were used by several factions. With 4,318 aircraft produced, the Type J was the most widely used bomber in the series. Authentic surface details. Detailed cockpit with dashboard. Elaborate Flying Bulls decoration In addition to basic colours, glue and brushes are also included. Safety instructions Recommended for modellers and collectors aged 14 and over. Tips, edges and small parts are present due to scale and prototypical or functional design. Risk of swallowing. Therefore, keep out of the reach of children under the age of 10!
