Product Description

Master's survival pack VI - Floor plans for dungeons by Georg Joergens Dark corridors, peppered with traps that lead to rooms full of monsters: probably the most common setting from the early days of role-playing games has never quite gone out of fashion. Whether it's cave systems, mines or carefully designed complexes. The layouts are as varied as the dungeon forms. However, as it is usually dark underground, only the game master knows the way. He or she will gradually lay out the path from the multitude of corridors and rooms. As with a puzzle, you can build many different dungeons from corridors and rooms with different undergrounds. There are traps, cave-ins and a number of other interiors for further customisation. There are also six adventure suggestions "hidden" in the dungeon.
