They were developed by Nazi Germany during the Second World War, with Wernher von Braun being the main designer. The V2 rockets were used by the Germans from 1944, mainly for attacks on London and other Allied cities. The V2 had a range of around 300 km and could carry an explosive charge of around 1 tonne. The first design was based on engines that ran on liquid fuel. After launch, the rocket rose to an altitude of about 100 km (that's space!) and then plummeted towards its target at enormous speed, making it virtually impossible to intercept. The V-2 was the forerunner of modern ballistic missiles and had a significant impact on the development of space technology after the war. - 1191 high quality components, - manufactured in the EU by a company with over 35 years of tradition, - complies with safety standards for children's products, - fully compatible with other building block brands, - permanent printing only, no stickers, - clear and intuitive instructions using drawings and symbols, - 1 figure, - name plate, - accessories for the figure - scale 1:35 - dimensions of the model (L x H): 405mm x 24mm x 130mm 485 mm x 24 mm x 435 mm - with base and raised edges specification - catalogue no.: COBI-3120 - manufacturer: Cobi Factory SA - length: 48,5 cm / 19.1? - width: 8 cm / 3.1? - height: 13 cm / 5.1? - scale: 1:35 - number of parts: 1191 - number of figures: 1 - age group: 10+ - EAN: 5902251031206
