Product Description

After the Willys-Overland company had produced a small off-road vehicle for the army in 1944, a production variant for private customers was launched on the market the following year, which was labelled with the factory code CJ-2A. The first generation of the Willys CJ introduced on a large scale the body proportions characteristic of later Jeep models, including clearly pronounced wings, a convex bonnet, round, closely spaced headlights and vertical bars on the radiator grille. The licensed 1:35 scale model of the JEEP WILLYS CJ-2A, developed from clamp-on bricks, contains specially designed elements with the characteristic Willys grille and window frames. The model features rotating wheels and is sized to fit COBI minifigures!
