Product Description

TREPANATION Which shady character gathers the most supporters around him and can perform the most desirable shows to gain the most fame? Medical shows and demonstrations, which were very popular in the Western world in the mid-19th to early 20th century, captivated people with their bizarre performances. Frankenstein, the title character of the novel of the same name, was a terrifying figure. Fearful and at the same time fascinated, people watched as doctors electrified corpses, pulled teeth or offered dubious miracle cures....In TREPANATION, players become quacks of the time, presenting medical performances to the gullible public in their shows and competing for the title of most famous charlatan. TREPANATION is a time management game for 2-5 show performers aged 12 and over. Beautifully illustrated cards with meaningful titles allow players to immerse themselves in this very special world. Important information Caution! Not suitable for children under 36 months.
