Product Description

This zone compendium is the second official, original German-language supplement for the award-winning role-playing game Mutant: Year Zero. The book presents the Junkfurt zone, whose buildings are said to have once reached into the clouds and are now overgrown by forests or sinking into treacherous swamps. Ten sectors of the zone are described in detail: Turmstadt: The former skyline of the city is overgrown by trees and inhabited by monkey mutants. The Roman Dome: Humans and mutants seem to live in paradisiacal conditions under a huge glass dome. Rail City: A bazaar has sprung up in the ruins of the railway station where everything is sold - because there are no rules here... The Steal: In this marshy area, an old hermit is said to hoard the accumulated knowledge of the past. The Termite Burrow: The commune in the old residential tower has always enjoyed debating, but for some time now their disputes have been increasing. The Mess: At night, screeching zonenghoul thunder out of this bone fortress in their carts to hunt everything and everyone. The Eyrie: Steel eagles fly over the zone from this huge tower to swoop down on unsuspecting victims. The Ribbed Forest Tunnel: Like their ancestors, the Morlocks are still digging this tunnel to one day reach the promised breakthrough. Port F.R.A.: A mysterious order has set up shop at this old airport, seeking the promised land above the clouds. The Fabbwerke: Some old chemical plants have recently resumed operations, but some of the products manufactured there are developing a life of their own...
