Product Description

Embark on an adventurous journey through the Scottish Highlands! As a resourceful junk dealer, you travel from village to village, collecting goods and successfully delivering them to their destination. But the journey is full of challenges: rough terrain, bogs, rivers and stubborn donkeys make life difficult for you. With your cart and clever use of concentrated feed, you will overcome every hurdle. At the start of each round, several piles of cards are formed face up and laid out. Keep a close eye on which cards go into which pile, as you will take one of them into your hand and play with it. With 2-4 players aged 10 and up, you plan your routes, collect junk and fulfil junk requests to score valuable points. Make sure you use your power food skilfully, because too much of it could give your opponents the advantage! Who will manage to deliver the most valuable goods and secure the title of best junk dealer? And who will fall by the wayside because they have given their horse too much concentrated feed? This captivating family game by author Carlo A. Rossi ensures varied rounds of play with clever use of cards and tactical decisions. The atmospheric trip to the Scottish Highlands has been completed by the sought-after illustrator Dennis Lohausen to create a cheerful and stylish feast for the eyes.
