Product Description

H.M.H.S. model Britannic is a unique opportunity to travel back in time and feel history for yourself. The Titanic's sister ship, originally designed as a luxury ocean liner, was converted into a hospital ship during the First World War. Although the Britannic sank during the operation on 21 November 1916 after hitting a mine, most of the crew and passengers were saved thanks to the efficient evacuation. This model is a tribute to this legendary ship, which was 269.06 metres long and 29 metres wide and housed wounded soldiers and medical personnel on its deck. The H.M.H.S. model consists of 636 COBI building blocks. The Britannic is 38.5 cm long and 12 cm high on a scale of 1:700. It accurately reproduces the shape and body of the ship and numerous details, such as movable cranes, screws and a rudder, ensure authenticity and the possibility of interaction. The set also includes an elegant presentation stand with a plaque, making it an ideal element for presentation in any interior. Thanks to the intuitive building instructions, which are based on simple symbols and pictograms, building the model is pure joy. The model does not need to be glued or painted, and all the inscriptions and graphics are permanently printed on the clamp bricks, ensuring durability and resistance to intensive play. The set does not use stickers, which guarantees its high quality. It is aimed at ages 7+ and its careful finish will satisfy both younger and adult history and sea lovers. H.M.H.S. model Britannic is not only a great curiosity for your collection, but also a great way to develop your passion and combine learning with fun.
