Product Description

The most famous American Iowa-class battleships in the world in an EXECUTIVE EDITION set! You decide which of the four existing ships you want to build! In the box you will find bricks with individual ship markings, bricks for design changes and a set of four exclusive black nameplates! USS Iowa (BB-61), USS New Jersey (BB-62), USS Missouri (BB-63), USS Wisconsin (BB-64), Which of these will be on your shelf? Or maybe all four? The Iowa-class battleships are four ships built by the US Navy in 1939-1940 to conduct joint operations under the so-called High Speed Fleet Teams (Task Force). The battleships took part in all US wars from the beginning until the end of the 20th century. On board the USS Missouri (BB-63), the surrender document of the Empire of Japan was signed on 2 September 1945, officially ending the Second World War. The battleships served intermittently in the reserve fleet and on the front line until 2006. Each of these ships is currently open to the public as a museum and living legend! A 1:300 scale model made of COBI building blocks is a real challenge for all master builders. It consists of 2,685 elements and requires several hours of intensive and exciting assembly. It is exactly 92 cm (36.2") long and 20.5 cm (8") high. It has movable elements such as artillery turrets and cannon barrels, propellers and a rudder. High-quality printing has made it possible to capture even more details that make the block-shaped ship look very attractive! Thanks to the intuitive instructions with easy-to-read symbols, assembly is simple and does not cause any problems. When building, you choose one of four possible ship variants. The set includes a special block display stand with the names of the ships printed on four different plates. The model looks very impressive on it! The legendary Iowa-class battleship will be a unique decoration for any history, nautical or military enthusiast's collection.
